Several of our classrooms allow instructors to teach a live class while broadcasting to remote students over Zoom. If you are one of those remote students, here are some things to keep in mind for the best learning experience:

Before you log in

- Make sure your computer meets Zoom's minimum requirements.
- Test your Zoom connection ahead of time using Zoom's test meeting.
- Test your device's audio. For the best results, use a headset or headphones.
- Close any unnecessary applications running in the background that may compete for system memory or internet bandwidth.

Log in

- For security reasons, only students who are officially registered for a course will be allowed to log in and join the class.
- Log into Zoom using your ODU Zoom account and your real name.

View the class

- Use a computer or laptop (not a mobile device) whenever possible. This allows you to see more of the class at once and gives you the best view of the front of the classroom.
- Change your video layout to Active Speaker View, and pin your instructor's video window so that you can see the front of the classroom no matter who's talking.
- View the class in full screen mode so your instructor and the whiteboard are easier to see.
